

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

Jesus Carvajal,

Plaintiff

Clark County, et al.,

Case No.: 2:20-cv-01482-JAD-BNW

Order Granting Defendants' Summary-Judgment Motion; Granting Defendants' Motions to Dismiss; and Granting in part Plaintiff's Motion for Leave to Amend

[ECF Nos. 11, 15, 26, 27, 40]

Jesus Carvajal sues a slew of police officers, detectives, municipal bodies, and attorneys for constitutional violations and torts stemming from his 2018 arrest.<sup>1</sup> The defendants varyingly seek summary judgment<sup>2</sup> and dismissal<sup>3</sup> of Carvajal's claims, arguing that (1) Carvajal failed to properly serve certain defendants; (2) many defendants are immune from suit; (3) certain claims are barred by statutes of limitation and Nevada's notice requirements; (4) his claims stem from an inadequately pled and factually belied judicial-deception theory; and (5) Carvajal fails to allege an unconstitutional policy or custom that might render the municipal entities liable for his injuries. Carvajal concedes some, though not all, of these arguments, and he seeks leave to file an amended complaint eliminating certain defendants and causes of action.<sup>4</sup>

While Carvajal presents two alleged constitutional violations—one predicated on judicial deception and the other on deprivation of property—neither adequately supports his claims. His first theory rests on inaccurate and immaterial facts; his second is inadequately pled. So I find

<sup>1</sup> ECF No. 7 (amended complaint).

<sup>2</sup> ECF No. 27.

<sup>3</sup> ECF No. 11, 15, 26.

<sup>4</sup> ECF No. 40.

1 that his alleged cascading, constitutional violations cannot survive the defendants’ Federal Rule
2 of Civil Procedure 56 and 12(b)(6) motions. I thus grant the defendants’ summary-judgment
3 motion and motions to dismiss, disposing of all claims. But because Carvajal could remedy
4 some of his insufficiently pled claims, I grant in part his motion for leave to amend and permit
5 him to amend his complaint to assert his deprivation-of-property and municipal-liability theories
6 if he can plead true facts to remedy their deficiencies.

7 Background<sup>5</sup>

8 In 2018, four Las Vegas sex workers reported being accosted, sexually assaulted, and 9 extorted by a man pretending to be a police officer.<sup>6</sup> The women’s accounts of the assailant
10 were fairly uniform—the man was of Hispanic descent and average height, drove a small Dodge
11 vehicle, and had a well-maintained beard.<sup>7</sup> They claimed that after forcing them to perform 12 sexual acts in exchange for not arresting them, the man would give them his phone number and 13 direct them to call him so that they could provide him with further information about Las 14 Vegas’s sex industry or to arrange additional meetings.<sup>8</sup> Las Vegas Metropolitan Police
15 Department (LVMPD) detectives and officers—led by Eric Charaska and Opal Deeds—
16 narrowed in on Carvajal as a suspect after some of the women identified him in a photo line-up,

---

21 <sup>5</sup> This is merely a summary of facts alleged in the complaint and should not be construed as 22 findings of fact.

23 <sup>6</sup> ECF No. 7 at ¶¶ 22, 26, 29.

<sup>7</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 22–25, 27–28, 30–34.

<sup>8</sup> Id.

1 and detectives connected the suspect’s number to Carvajal’s residence, performed a stakeout, and 2 discovered that he owned a Dodge Caliber.<sup>9</sup>

3       On August 8, 2018, Charaska and Deeds obtained a telephonic search warrant to arrest
4 Carvajal and search his home by allegedly misrepresenting certain facts and eliding others to the 5 judge.<sup>10</sup> According to Carvajal, Charaska inaccurately reported that two victims positively
6 identified Carvajal in the photo lineup “with 100% certainty” as a man named “Lee”<sup>11</sup> when, in 7 truth, one of the victims was only 80% certain that Carvajal assaulted her, another did not
8 identify Carvajal in the lineup, and the third never knew his name.<sup>12</sup> He adds that Charaska
9 failed to tell the judge that one victim—who had identified Carvajal with 100% certainty—also 10 reported seeing the perpetrator looking for new victims, all while police were monitoring 11 Carvajal at his residence miles away.<sup>13</sup> Carvajal also claims that Charaska overstated the 12 connection between Carvajal’s residence, the suspect’s phone number, two different Dodge 13 vehicles, Carvajal, and his girlfriend: the phone number and one of the cars was associated with 14 Carvajal’s landlord and not Carvajal.<sup>14</sup> Finally, Charaska apparently painted a misleading
15 physical portrait of Carvajal in the warrant application, showing photos of Carvajal in paintball
16 gear that made it appear as though he routinely carries police-issue weapons and body armor,

---

20 <sup>9</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 35–36, 38.

21 <sup>10</sup> Id. at ¶ 21.

22 <sup>11</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 48–51, 53.

23 <sup>12</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 48–51, 53, 60.

<sup>13</sup> Id. at ¶ 56.

<sup>14</sup> Id. at 57–60.

1 while failing to report that Carvajal is at least six inches taller than the assailant described by his 2 victims.<sup>15</sup>

3 Carvajal's August 9th arrest received significant press attention and LVMPD published
4 his image on its social-media webpage, describing his "sexual assault," "kidnapping," and "false
5 impersonation of a Public Officer."<sup>16</sup> As a result, he lost his job, his partner, his car, and his 6 housing.<sup>17</sup> But over the following months, it became increasingly clear that a different man had 7 assaulted the victims and that the officers' basis for arresting Carvajal was tenuous.<sup>18</sup> On 8 October 22nd, LVMPD arrested a new suspect and the district attorney Steve Wolfson dropped
9 the charges against Carvajal—although Wolfson refused to agree to seal Carvajal's criminal case
10 until Carvajal agreed to withdraw his motion for attorneys' fees.<sup>19</sup>

11 So Carvajal sues police officers and detectives Charaska, Deeds, and Joseph Lombardo;
12 attorneys Samuel Martinez and Wolfson; LVMPD; the Clark County District Attorney's Office
13 (CCDA); Clark County; and the City of Las Vegas under § 1983 and Monell v. Department of 14 Social Services of City of New York<sup>20</sup> for various constitutional violations related to his arrest,
15 detention, and prosecution, as well as for defamation and negligent hiring, retention, supervision,
16 and training.<sup>21</sup> LVMPD moves to dismiss Carvajal's complaint, arguing that he fails to allege an 17 unconstitutional policy or custom that might render it liable for the alleged conduct of its

---

19 <sup>15</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 61, 64–65.

20 <sup>16</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 79–80.

21 <sup>17</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 90.

22 <sup>18</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 84, 86.

23 <sup>19</sup> Id. at ¶¶ 87–89, 95.

<sup>20</sup> Monell v. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 436 U.S. 658, 690 (1978).

<sup>21</sup> See generally ECF No. 7. It does not appear that Carvajal has served Lombardo or the City.

1 employees and that his state-law claims are barred by the statute of limitations and insufficiently
2 pled.<sup>22</sup> The County, CCDA, and Wolfson separately move to dismiss Carvajal's claims,
3 asserting that the district attorneys are immune from suit, and that he cannot state a claim against 4 the office or county as a matter of law.<sup>23</sup> Charaska and Deeds also move to dismiss and for 5 summary judgment on Carvajal's claims, arguing that each constitutional violation hinges on a 6 terminally inadequate judicial-deception theory of liability.<sup>24</sup> Conceding that some of these
7 arguments have merit, Carvajal seeks leave to file an amended complaint that would remedy
8 certain pleading defects and eliminate some defendants.<sup>25</sup>

9 Discussion

10 I. Motions to dismiss [ECF Nos. 11, 15, 26]

11 A. Improper service under Rule 4(m)

12 The defendants first seek dismissal of the claims against Charaska and Deeds under Rule
13 4(m), arguing that Carvajal inadequately served them. Carvajal argues that his failure to timely 14 serve the defendants was based on a technical deficiency caused by the remote-work conditions
15 engendered by the COVID-19 pandemic; the defendants were on notice of the lawsuit; their 16 counsel, who also represent the properly served LVMPD, received the complaint and summons;
17 and the defendants have now been properly served.<sup>26</sup> I exercise my discretion<sup>27</sup> and decline to

---

18 <sup>22</sup> ECF No. 11.

19 <sup>23</sup> ECF No. 15.

20 <sup>24</sup> ECF No. 26.

21 <sup>25</sup> ECF No. 40. Carvajal is also advised to follow this court's local rules, which requires motions
22 to be double-spaced, with no more than 28 lines per page. L.R. IA 10-1(a)(1). Carvajal's 23 counsel's filings, see, e.g., ECF No. 30, violate this rule. Further violations of this court's rules will result in sanctions, which may include striking his briefing.

<sup>26</sup> ECF No. 31 at 10.

<sup>27</sup> Efaw v. Williams, 473 F.3d 1038, 1041 (9th Cir. 2007).

1 dismiss these defendants for untimely service under Rule 4(m). Not only has Carvajal shown
2 good cause for his delayed service and that he would incur prejudice were I to dismiss his 3 complaint,<sup>28</sup> but the defendants have suffered no prejudice from his delay, they received actual 4 notice of the lawsuit, and they were eventually served.<sup>29</sup>

5
6 B. Carvajal's claims against the City, CCDA, Martinez, and Wolfson are dismissed.

7 The defendants argue that Carvajal's claims against CCDA, the City, and Martinez are 8 improper because the County, not CCDA, is the appropriate party for any claims against that 9 office and Martinez is shielded for his actions by absolute immunity. They also argue that 10 Carvajal cannot state a claim for negligent hiring, training, and supervision. Because Carvajal 11 agrees that these parties are improper and that he cannot state a negligent-hiring-training-and-
12 supervision claim,<sup>30</sup> I dismiss CCDA and Martinez from this case, as well as the claim for 13 negligent hiring, training, and supervision. And I dismiss the City because, as Carvajal
14 concedes, the City cannot be held liable for LVMPD's actions.

15 I also dismiss Wolfson from this suit. As best I can tell, Carvajal's amended complaint
16 indicates that he no longer alleges any claims against Wolfson.<sup>31</sup> And while Carvajal discusses 17 at length Wolfson's conduct in negotiating the withdrawal of Carvajal's attorneys' fees motion, 18 describes his alleged complicity with the unconstitutional policies and customs of CCDA in the 19

---

20 <sup>28</sup> Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m).

21 <sup>29</sup> Efaw, 473 F.3d at 1041 ("In making extension decisions under Rule 4(m) a district court may 22 consider factors 'like a statute of limitations bar, prejudice to the defendant, actual notice of a lawsuit, and eventual service.'" (quoting Troxell v. Fedders of N. Am., Inc., 160 F.3d 381, 383 (7th Cir. 1998))).

23 <sup>30</sup> ECF No. 40 at 3–4.

<sup>31</sup> See ECF No. 40-1.

1 Monell claim, and implies that he has committed some sort of extortion, Wolfson is not
2 identified as a defendant in any of Carvajal’s causes of action.<sup>32</sup>

3 II. Summary-judgment motion [ECF No. 27]

4 A. Legal standard

5 Charaska and Deeds move for summary judgment on Carvajal’s claims under Rule 56.
6 The principal purpose of the summary-judgment procedure is to isolate and dispose of factually
7 unsupported claims or defenses.<sup>33</sup> Summary judgment is appropriate when the pleadings and 8 admissible evidence “show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the 9 movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”<sup>34</sup> The moving party bears the initial 10 responsibility of presenting the basis for its motion and identifying the portions of the record or 11 affidavits that demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.<sup>35</sup> If the moving party 12 satisfies its burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing party to present specific facts that 13 show a genuine issue for trial.<sup>36</sup> The court must view all facts and draw all reasonable inferences
14 in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.<sup>37</sup> But the court may deny a motion for 15 summary judgment “[i]f [the] nonmovant shows by affidavit or declaration that” “it cannot 16 present facts essential to justify its opposition.”<sup>38</sup>

---

18 <sup>32</sup> See, e.g., id. at 67; ECF No. 21 at 8. I consider the parties’ remaining Rule 12(b)(6) argument
19 in the context of Carvajal’s motion for leave to amend. See infra III.A.

20 <sup>33</sup> Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323–24 (1986).

21 <sup>34</sup> See id. at 322 (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)).

22 <sup>35</sup> Id. at 323; Devereaux v. Abbey, 263 F.3d 1070, 1076 (9th Cir. 2001) (en banc).

23 <sup>36</sup> Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986); Auvil v. CBS 60 Minutes, 67 F.3d 816, 819 (9th Cir. 1995).

<sup>37</sup> Kaiser Cement Corp. v. Fishbach & Moore, Inc., 793 F.2d 1100, 1103 (9th Cir. 1986).

<sup>38</sup> Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(d)(1).

1           B.       Judicial-deception claims

2           Carvajal’s full complement § 1983 claims against Charaska and Deeds hinge on a 3 judicial-deception theory of liability, which posits that the defendants lacked probable cause to 4 arrest Carvajal because they misled a judge to issue a warrant for his arrest, thus resulting in 5 Carvajal’s unlawful and unconstitutional arrest, detention, and prosecution.<sup>39</sup> It has long been 6 held that “judicial deception may not be employed to obtain a search warrant.”<sup>40</sup> “To maintain a 7 false[-]arrest claim for judicial deception, a plaintiff must show that the officer who applied for 8 the arrest warrant ‘deliberately or recklessly made false statements or omissions that were 9 material to the finding of probable cause.’”<sup>41</sup> Once a substantial showing of “deliberate or 10 reckless false statements and omissions” has been made, “‘the question of intent or recklessness
11 is a factual determination’ that must be made by the trier of fact.”<sup>42</sup> To establish materiality, the 12 plaintiff must demonstrate that the judge “would not have issued the warrant with false 13 information redacted, or omitted information restored.”<sup>43</sup>

14           In their motion for summary judgment, Charaska and Deeds challenge Carvajal’s 15 showing of judicial deception on two grounds: (1) Charaska did not misrepresent certain facts to 16 the judge and (2) even had he made those misrepresentations, they were immaterial to the 17 judge’s probable-cause finding. They back these arguments with citations to police records, 18
19

---

20 <sup>39</sup> See Smith v. Almada, 640 F.3d 931, 937 (9th Cir. 2011) (“[A] private party may bring a § 1983 claim for an arrest pursuant to an improperly issued arrest warrant.”).

21 <sup>40</sup> KRL v. Moore, 384 F.3d 1105, 1117 (9th Cir. 2004) (citing Franks v. Delaware, 438 U.S. 154, 155–56 (1978)).

22 <sup>41</sup> Smith, 640 F.3d at 937 (quoting KRL, 384 F.3d at 1190).

23 <sup>42</sup> Chism v. Washington State, 661 F.3d 380, 387–88 (9th Cir. 2011).

<sup>43</sup> Id.

1 witness interviews, social-media photographs, and emails.<sup>44</sup> Despite reciting Rule 56's
2 governing standards,<sup>45</sup> Carvajal declines to follow them, and he fails to provide evidence that 3 might refute the defendants' assertions or explain, in an affidavit, why the evidence needed to 4 refute those claims is unavailable or otherwise discoverable. Instead, he frequently notes that 5 Charaska and Deeds's arguments are "proper on summary judgment."<sup>46</sup> So I evaluate the 6 defendants' summary-judgment motion by considering its merits and determining whether it is 7 supported by the necessary evidentiary materials.<sup>47</sup>

8 1. Charaska misrepresented certain facts.

9 Carvajal alleges that Charaska and Deeds's search-warrant application contained 10 misrepresentations and critical omissions that, collectively, unlawfully persuaded a judge to find
11 probable cause to arrest Carvajal. Upon review of the complaint's allegations and the undisputed 12 facts presented by the defendants, I find that some, though not all, of these statements were 13 accurate. First, Charaska accurately relayed to the issuing judge that two of the victims
14 identified Carvajal as the suspect with almost 100% certainty from a photo lineup.<sup>48</sup> Second,
15 Charaska reported that multiple victims described the suspect as going by the name "Lee."<sup>49</sup>
16 Third, while Charaska did not explain the details behind how LVMPD connected "Lee's" phone

---

17 <sup>44</sup> See ECF Nos. 27-1, 27-2.

18 <sup>45</sup> ECF No. 31 at 3–4.

19 <sup>46</sup> Id. at 18 ("[T]he time to present proof disputing the facts alleged by Plaintiff is after 20 discovery."); id. at 19 ("Defendants [sic] attempt to dispute the facts is proper for summary judgment.").

21 <sup>47</sup> See, e.g., Anchorage Assocs. v. V.I. Bd. of Tax Rev., 922 F.2d 168, 175 (3rd Cir. 1990);
Keenan v. Allen, 91 F.3d 1275, 1279 (9th Cir. 1996).

22 <sup>48</sup> See ECF Nos. 7 ("Jacqueline Hodgson . . . identified Plaintiff with 100% certainty."); 27-1 at 2
("I'm almost 100% sure that the photo I identify [sic] is the man . . . [signed] Alisha Williams.").

23 <sup>49</sup> See ECF No. 27 ("And honestly he gave me first name [sic] was Lee and then he gave me a different name.").

1 number to Carvajal’s residence, he accurately reported where Carvajal lived, that the number
2 was associated with the residence, and that Carvajal owned a Dodge Caliber, while another
3 resident in his home owned a Dodge Challenger.<sup>50</sup> He also accurately stated that both sets of 4 cars could be mistaken for a Dodge Charger.<sup>51</sup> Fourth, Charaska explained that social-media
5 images showed Carvajal holding firearms and wearing police-style body armor.<sup>52</sup> And finally,
6 Charaska failed to report that one key witness—who identified Carvajal as the suspect from a 7 photo lineup—also saw the suspect pursuing other victims at a time when Carvajal was under 8 police surveillance.<sup>53</sup>

9       However, disputes of fact remain over the accuracy of several statements in the arrest-
10 warrant application. First, there is a dispute about whether the photos of Carvajal with weapons
11 presented to the judge were merely pictures of him with paintball guns or real weapons.<sup>54</sup>
12 There’s also a dispute over whether one of the witnesses accurately identified Carvajal as driving
13 a silver Dodge Charger, as opposed to a small, four-door car.<sup>55</sup> And there’s a dispute about 14 whether Charaska was entirely forthcoming about the disparity between Carvajal’s height and 15 build, and the height of the suspect whom the witnesses described.<sup>56</sup>

---

17 <sup>50</sup> ECF No. 4-1 at 6–7.

18 <sup>51</sup> Id.

19 <sup>52</sup> ECF No. 27-2 at 2–5.

20 <sup>53</sup> ECF No. 7 at ¶ 55. Charaska argues that he had not heard this witness’s statement, but this 21 goes to the issue of intent and not, as Charaska would have it, whether an omission occurred.

22 <sup>54</sup> Compare ECF Nos. 4-6 at 3–7, with 27-2 at 2–5. Many of the images presented by each party
23 are identical, so it is entirely unclear whether Carvajal’s weapons are for paintball or not.

<sup>55</sup> ECF No. 4-1 at 5; ECF No. 7 at ¶ 62.

<sup>56</sup> ECF No. 27 at 8 (citing ECF No. 7 at ¶¶ 63, 65). The defendants cite a portion of a witness’s testimony likening the suspect’s build to Charaska’s, see ECF No. 27-1 at 23, but I see nothing in the record likening Charaska’s build to Carvajal’s—much less any testimony indicating that the witnesses uniformly described the suspect as “muscular,” as opposed to “decent size,” id. at 38.

1           Considering these facts and construing these disputes in Carvajal’s favor, I find that
2 Carvajal has adequately alleged misrepresentations and omissions in Charaska’s warrant
3 application. I also find that a “reasonable factfinder” could “conclude that the officers acted with 4 at least a reckless disregard for the truth.”<sup>57</sup> As the Ninth Circuit explained in Chism v.
5 Washington State, where, as here, the misrepresentations in the application “all bolster the case
6 for probable cause,” a reasonable factfinder could determine that “the mistakes were not the 7 product of mere negligence.”<sup>58</sup> Each of Charaska’s misrepresentations was designed to increase
8 the perception that Carvajal was responsible for the sexual assaults, painting a clear portrait that 9 associated the witnesses’ accounts of the suspect with Carvajal, his home, and his car. It is 10 certainly reasonable to conclude that Charaska’s application “report[ed] less than the total story,” 11 so as to “manipulate the inferences a [judge] will draw” in determining probable cause.<sup>59</sup> So I
12 decline to grant summary judgment on Carvajal’s claims on the basis that he has insufficiently 13 shown substantial misrepresentations in the warrant application that give rise to genuine issues of 14 material fact.

15           2.       *Those misrepresentations were immaterial to finding probable cause.

16           While intent is a question of fact reserved for the jury, whether “the false statements and 17 omissions were material” to “the probable[-]cause determination” is “a purely legal question”
18 reserved for the judge.<sup>60</sup> As the Ninth Circuit clarified in Chism, a misrepresentation is material 19 if the application, “once corrected and supplemented, would not have provided a magistrate 20

21 _____
22 <sup>57</sup> Chism, 661 F.3d at 388 (citing Butler v. Elle, 281 F.3d 1014, 1025–26 (9th Cir. 2002)).

23 <sup>58</sup> Id.

<sup>59</sup> United States v. Stanert, 762 F.2d 775, 781 (9th Cir. 1985).

<sup>60</sup> Chism, 661 F.3d at 388–89.

1 judge with a substantial basis for finding probable cause.”<sup>61</sup> Or, put another way, “[i]f an officer
2 submitted false statements, the court purges those statements and determines whether what is left
3 justifies the issuance of the warrant.”<sup>62</sup> The Supreme Court has declined to articulate a “neat set
4 of legal rules” for evaluating probable cause, and instead directs judges to consider the “totality-
5 of-the-circumstances” when deciding whether to issue a warrant.<sup>63</sup>

6 Under Ninth Circuit authority, a finding of probable cause “must be based on ‘reasonably 7 trustworthy information sufficient to warrant a prudent person in believing that the accused had 8 committed or was committing an offense.’”<sup>64</sup> In Ewing v. City of Stockton, the Ninth Circuit 9 found that certain misrepresentations in a warrant application were immaterial to the eventual 10 probable-cause determination because the application centered on a citizen witness’s reliable,
11 positive identification of the suspect.<sup>65</sup> So too in Lombardi v. City of El Cajon, where the court
12 held that the omission of facts about two witnesses—namely, that they may have had a personal 13 bias against defendant—were immaterial to the judge’s probable-cause finding because those 14 witnesses’ identification of the suspect included detailed, personal observations of the crime.<sup>66</sup>
15 The Third Circuit has reasoned similarly, holding that “[w]hen a police officer has received a 16 reliable identification by a victim of his or her attacker, the police have probable cause to

---

17
18
19 <sup>61</sup> Id. at 389.

20 <sup>62</sup> Ewing v. City of Stockton, 588 F.3d 1218, 1224 (9th Cir. 2009) (citing Baldwin v. Placer Cnty., 418 F.3d 966, 971 (9th Cir. 2005)).

21 <sup>63</sup> Illinois v. Gates, 462 U.S. 213, 230, 232 (1983).

22 <sup>64</sup> Reynaga Hernandez v. Skinner, 969 F.3d 930, 938 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Allen v. City of Portland, 73 F.3d 232, 235 (9th Cir. 1995)) (internal quotation marks omitted).

23 <sup>65</sup> Ewing, 588 F.3d at 1224.

<sup>66</sup> Lombardi v. City of El Cajon, 117 F.3d 1117, 1126–27 (9th Cir. 1997).

1 arrest.”<sup>67</sup> And in Lallemand v. University of Rhode Island, the First Circuit found that 2 “discrepancies” concerning a suspect’s “name, hair style, dormitory[,] and height” were “trivial”
3 and immaterial to a probable-cause finding, given “their nature and the positive identification” of 4 the suspect by the victim.<sup>68</sup>

5 Guided by this precedent, I find that the warrant application—stripped of Charaska’s 6 misrepresentations and supplemented with the omitted information—permits a finding of 7 probable cause. It is undisputed that two witnesses positively identified Carvajal in a photo
8 lineup. They gave detailed, reliable accounts of their interactions with the suspect; convincingly
9 described his conduct; accurately and uniformly described his appearance and pseudonym;
10 identified his phone number and the make of his vehicle; and pointed him out in a lineup. Like
11 the witnesses in Ewing and Lallemand, they are also to be “presumed credible by police”<sup>69</sup>
12 because they were victims of the crime. The officers independently verified portions of their 13 accounts, linking the suspect’s phone number to Carvajal’s residence, determining that he owned 14 a vehicle of the same manufacture as the suspect’s, and that a second, similar vehicle, was also 15 associated with the residence. They also uncovered social-media photographs of him holding 16 weapons and wearing body armor.

17 The misrepresentations and omissions upon which Carvajal dwells do not change my 18 analysis, and he offers no reason to deviate from the guidance provided by the Ewing,
19 Lallemand, and Lombardi courts. While I give some weight to the fact that a victim witness says

---

21 <sup>67</sup> Carson v. Aurand, 837 F. App’x. 121, 123 (3d Cir. 2020) (unpublished) (citing Sharrar v.
22 Felsing, 128 F.3d 810, 818 (3d Cir. 1997), abrogated on other grounds by Curley v. Klem, 499
F.3d 199 (3d Cir. 2007)).

23 <sup>68</sup> Lallemand v. University of R.I., 9 F.3d 214, 217 (1st Cir. 1993).

<sup>69</sup> Ewing, 588 F.3d at 1225 (quoting United States v. Blount, 123 F.3d 831, 835 (5th Cir. 1997))
(internal quotation marks omitted).

1 she saw the suspect at a time when it could not be Carvajal, that does not negate the two positive
2 identifications of Carvajal in the photo lineup. And, like the “trivial” quibbling over the 3 suspect’s height and build in Lallemand, I cannot find that details about whether Carvajal was 4 sufficiently “muscular” would have swayed a finding of probable cause. Nor can I find that the 5 judge’s probable-cause determination would have changed if she were to have learned that 6 Carvajal’s weapons were for paintball; based on the photos, they still give the impression that 7 Carvajal possessed weapons and body armor that might be used to impersonate an officer.
8 Finally, even were the judge to be made aware of the full details about the connection between 9 the suspect’s phone number and Carvajal’s residence, it would not negate the fact that Carvajal
10 lives in the house associated with that phone number or that he drives a Dodge. So I find, based 11 on the undisputed facts construed in the light most favorable to Carvajal, that the 12 misrepresentations and omissions contained in the application were immaterial to the finding of 13 probable cause. Thus, Carvajal does not and cannot state a judicial-deception claim against 14 Charaska or Deeds, and they are entitled to summary judgment on any theory of liability
15 predicated on the absence of probable cause for Carvajal’s arrest.

16
17 C. The failure of the judicial-deception theory dooms Carvajal’s claims for 18 unlawful-entry, search, seizure, arrest, and imprisonment; malicious- prosecution; and his deprivation-of-liberty claim under the Fourteenth Amendment.

19 Because of the failure of Carvajal’s judicial-deception theory, I must enter summary
20 judgment in favor of Charaska and Deeds on Carvajal’s § 1983 claims—including his causes of 21 action for unlawful entry, search, and seizure; false arrest and imprisonment; malicious
22 prosecution; and procedural due-process claims related to a deprivation-of-liberty theory. Each 23 of those causes of action turns on a lack of probable cause, thanks to the defendants’ alleged (1)

1 misrepresentations to the judge who issued the arrest warrant; and (2) continued reliance on the 2 arrest report, which supposedly contained material inaccuracies.<sup>70</sup> Because I have found that 3 there was probable cause to arrest Carvajal and these misrepresentations were immaterial, these 4 claims against Charaska and Deeds fail.<sup>71</sup> So I grant summary judgment in favor of Charaska
5 and Deeds on Carvajal’s first, second, third, and fourth (with respect to the deprivation-of-liberty 6 theory) causes of action.

7 III. Motion for leave to amend [ECF No. 40]

8 What remains are Carvajal’s claims under Monell against LVMPD and the County, and 9 his claims for deprivation of property and defamation. Conceding that certain of his claims are 10 inadequately pled, Carvajal moves to amend his complaint “to correct facts” and “deficiencies”
11 identified by the defendants, as well as “remove[] claims and parties.”<sup>72</sup> Rule 15(a)(2) of the 12 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure directs that “[t]he courts should freely give leave [to amend]

---

14 <sup>70</sup> See ECF No. 7 at ¶¶ 109 (“A claim for unlawful arrest or imprisonment is cognizable under 15 § 1983 . . . provided the arrest was without probable cause.”); 116 (same); 121 (“Defendant . . .
16 had possession of the Arrest Report and was aware that the report stated [misrepresentations].”);
17 129–30 (“In Nevada, the elements of malicious prosecution are “(1) want of probable cause to 18 initiate the prior criminal proceeding . . . . Defendants . . . initiated criminal proceedings against 19 Plaintiff without probable cause.”); 141–42 (“The due process clause of the Fourteenth 20 Amendment protects individuals against governmental deprivations . . . . Defendants . . .
21 initiated criminal proceedings against Plaintiff without probable cause.”).

22 <sup>71</sup> Forster v. Cnty. of Santa Barbara, 896 F.2d 1146, 1147–48 (9th Cir. 1990) (reasoning that a 23 determination of whether an officer is liable for false arrest turns on “whether the warrant was valid” and “whether the police officer’s reliance on the warrant was nonetheless objectively reasonable”); Baker v. McCollan, 443 U.S. 137, 142–45 (1979) (noting that a claim for wrongful detention absent a cognizable claim for wrongful arrest will not ordinarily state an independent claim under § 1983); Hart v. Parks, 450 F.3d 1059, 1071 (9th Cir. 2006) (“A malicious prosecution claim requires, inter alia, a lack of probable cause.”); Bretz v. Kelman, 773 F.2d 1026, 1030–31 (9th Cir. 1985) (“An incorrect arrest does not provide grounds for a claim of deprivation of liberty without due process if the arrest was made pursuant to a valid warrant based upon probable cause.” (citing Baker, 443 U.S. at 143–45)).

<sup>72</sup> ECF No. 40 at 2.

1 when justice so requires.”<sup>73</sup> In determining whether to grant leave to amend, district courts
2 consider five factors: (1) bad faith, (2) undue delay, (3) prejudice to the opposing party, (4)
3 whether the plaintiff has previously amended the complaint, and (5) futility of amendment.<sup>74</sup>
4 The factors do not weigh equally—“[f]utility alone can justify denial of a motion to amend”<sup>75</sup>
5 and, among the other factors, the Ninth Circuit apportions the greatest weight to potential
6 prejudice.<sup>76</sup> Absent futility, a factually supported showing of prejudice, or a heavy influence of 7 the other factors, there is a strong presumption in favor of permitting amendment.<sup>77</sup> In opposing 8 his motion, the County, LVMPD, Charaska, and Deeds focus their attention on Carvajal’s bad 9 faith, undue delay, and the futility of amendment.

10 A. Futility

11 The defendants maintain that Carvajal does not and cannot state a claim as a matter of 12 law, warranting dismissal of his entire suit. An amended complaint is futile “where [it] would be 13 subject to dismissal” under Rule 12(b)(6).<sup>78</sup> Under that standard, the court must first accept as 14 true all well-pled factual allegations in the complaint, recognizing that legal conclusions are not 15 entitled to the assumption of truth.<sup>79</sup> Mere recitals of a claim’s elements, supported by only 16 conclusory statements, are insufficient.<sup>80</sup> The court must then consider whether the well-pled

---

18
19 <sup>73</sup> Carrico v. City and Cnty. of San Francisco, 656 F.3d 1002, 1008 (9th Cir. 2011).

20 <sup>74</sup> Johnson v. Buckley, 356 F.3d 1067, 1077 (9th Cir. 2004).

21 <sup>75</sup> Id.

22 <sup>76</sup> Eminence Cap., LLC v. Aspeon, Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1052 (9th Cir. 2003).

23 <sup>77</sup> Id. (citing DCD Programs, Ltd. v. Leighton, 833 F.2d 183, 186–87 (9th Cir. 1987)).

<sup>78</sup> Steckman v. Hart Brewing, Inc., 143 F.3d 1293, 1298 (9th Cir. 1998).

<sup>79</sup> Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678–79 (2009).

<sup>80</sup> Id.

1 factual allegations state a plausible claim for relief.<sup>81</sup> A claim is facially plausible when the
2 complaint alleges facts that allow the court to draw a reasonable inference that the defendant is 3 liable for the alleged misconduct.<sup>82</sup> A complaint that does not permit the court to infer more than 4 the mere possibility of misconduct has “alleged—but not shown—that the pleader is entitled to 5 relief,” and it must be dismissed.<sup>83</sup>

6 Echoing their initial Rule 12(b)(6) and 56 motions, LVMPD, Charaska, and Deeds argue 7 that amendment would be futile because Carvajal’s procedural due-process claims are 8 inadequately pled; Carvajal fails to allege an unconstitutional policy or custom that might 9 support his claims against the LVMPD or the County under Monell v. Department of Social 10 Services of City of New York; and Nevada’s claims-notice statute, Nevada Revised Statute
11 § 41.036(2), bars his defamation claim against LVMPD. For its part, the County reiterates that 12 Carvajal cannot state a Monell claim that might render the County liable for the conduct alleged.

13 1. Deprivation-of-property claim

14 Because the officers had probable cause to arrest Carvajal, his Fourteenth Amendment
15 claim is now exclusively tethered to a single act: impounding and auctioning off his vehicle. “A 16 procedural due-process claim has two distinct elements: (1) a deprivation of a constitutionally 17 protected liberty or property interest, and (2) a denial of adequate procedural protections.”<sup>84</sup>
18 “Exclusive reliance on the Fourth Amendment,” as opposed to the due-process clause, “is 19 appropriate in the arrest context” because “the Amendment was ‘tailored explicitly for the 20

21 _____
22 <sup>81</sup> Id. at 679.

23 <sup>82</sup> Id.

<sup>83</sup> Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007).

<sup>84</sup> Brewster v. Bd. of Educ. of Lynwood Unified Sch. Dist., 149 F.3d 971, 982 (9th Cir. 1998).

1 criminal justice system.”<sup>85</sup> The Ninth Circuit has long held that “when seizing property for 2 criminal[-]investigatory purposes, compliance with the Fourth Amendment satisfies pre-
3 deprivation procedural due process.”<sup>86</sup> Based on the allegations in the amended complaint, it is 4 entirely unclear whether and how the impounding of Carvajal’s vehicle, or its eventual sale,
5 violated the Fourth Amendment. It is also unclear who was responsible for the car’s disposal.
6 But because those pleadings defects could be remedied, I grant Carvajal leave to amend his 7 complaint to allege a Fourth Amendment violation related to the improper disposal of his 8 vehicle.

9                   2.     Monell claims against Clark County and LVMPD

10           Municipal bodies are not liable under § 1983 unless they themselves “cause[] the 11 constitutional violation at issue.”<sup>87</sup> In Monell, the Supreme Court held that liability extends to 12 local governing and administrative agencies only when the constitutional violation was the result 13 of its policy, practice, or custom, or a decision-making official directed or ratified the 14 complained-of conduct.<sup>88</sup> So Carvajal must show that the policy or lack thereof caused his 15 injury to succeed on a Monell claim.<sup>89</sup> But because (1) Carvajal cannot state a constitutional 16 violation based on his judicial-deception theory and (2) has failed to state a constitutional 17 violation based on his vehicle-impounding theory, there is no constitutional violation that could 18 support his Monell claim. I find that this pleading deficit might be remedied, however, and I
19 grant Carvajal leave to amend his Monell-based claims against the County and LVMPD.

20 _____
21 <sup>85</sup> United States v. James Daniel Good Real Prop., 510 U.S. 50 (1993).

22 <sup>86</sup> Sanders v. City of San Diego, 93 F.3d 1423, 1429 (9th Cir. 1996).

23 <sup>87</sup> City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 385 (1989).

<sup>88</sup> Monell, 436 U.S. at 690.

<sup>89</sup> Bd. of Cnty. Comm’rs Bryan Cnty., Okl. v. Brown, 520 U.S. 397, 403–04 (1997).

1                   3.       Defamation claim and NRS § 41.036(2)

2           LVMPD argues that Carvajal’s defamation claim is time-barred because he failed to 3 comply with Nevada’s notice-requirement statute. Under NRS § 41.036(2), any “person who has 4 a claim against any political subdivision of the [s]tate arising out of a tort must file the claim
5 within two years after the time the cause of action accrues with the governing body of that 6 political subdivision.”<sup>90</sup> Carvajal does not challenge the constitutionality<sup>91</sup> of this statute and 7 admits that he failed to provide actual notice of his claim within the two-year period to 8 LVMPD.<sup>92</sup> But he asserts that LVMPD’s constructive notice of his claims satisfies the statute’s 9 requirements.

10           Carvajal’s arguments find little support in controlling or persuasive precedent. While the 11 Nevada Supreme Court has authored few opinions interpreting § 41.036(2), it has consistently 12 held that statutes setting forth explicit time restrictions are generally mandatory and that 13 substantial compliance with those statutes will not suffice—particularly when the statute, as here,

14
15 _____
<sup>90</sup> Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.036(2).

16 <sup>91</sup> In Jiminez v. State and Turner v. Staggs, the Nevada Supreme Court held that an earlier 17 version of NRS § 41.036(2) was unconstitutional because it “had the effect of arbitrarily dividing 18 all tort-feasors into classes of tort-feasors: (1) private tort-feasors to whom no notice of claim is 19 owed and (2) governmental tort-feasors to whom notice is owed.” Turner v. Staggs, 510 P.2d 20 879, 881 (Nev. 1973); Jiminez v. State, 98 Nev. 204, 206 (Nev. 1982) (“That decision invalidated 21 the notice of claims provision of NRS [§] 41.036.”). In Hatrim v. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police
22 Department and Zaic v. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, two judges in this district 23 reasoned that the amended version of the claims-notice statute is constitutional because it deals with a waiver of sovereignty, has a rational basis to support its notice requirement, eliminated the required notice of a claim as a condition precedent to filing suit, and broadened the required notice from “six months of the accrual of the incident” to “two years.” Hatrim v. Las Vegas
Metro. Police Dep’t, No. 2:11-cv-00003, 2011 WL 2690148, at *3 (D. Nev. Jul. 11, 2011); see also Zaic v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, No. 2:10-cv-01814, 2011 WL 884335, at *3–4 (D.
Nev. Mar. 11, 2011).

<sup>92</sup> Carvajal’s claim accrued on August 8, 2018, but he did not serve his complaint on LVMPD until October 23, 2020. See ECF Nos. 1, 10-2 at 2.

1 does not include a “built-in grace period or safety[-]valve provision.”<sup>93</sup> And multiple courts in 2 this district have dismissed state-tort claims against municipalities when the plaintiff fails to 3 timely and directly notify a municipal body of his claim. For example, in James v. City of 4 Henderson, a district court judge determined that a plaintiff’s timely filing, but untimely service,
5 of the complaint was insufficient notice under § 41.036(2).<sup>94</sup> And in Semper v. Las Vegas
6 Metropolitan Police Department, another judge reasoned that a plaintiff’s press conference about 7 its lawsuit was insufficient to provide notice, despite evidence that LVMPD saw and was 8 questioned about news of the action.<sup>95</sup> So too in Hatrim v. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police
9 Department, where the district court judge reasoned even more forcefully, concluding that 10 “substantial compliance does not suffice” with the requirements of § 41.036(2) and dismissing
11 plaintiff’s timely filed, but untimely served, complaint.<sup>96</sup>

12 Here, Carvajal cites no facts in his complaint or amended pleading indicating that he gave 13 timely notice to LVMPD that he planned to bring or had brought a defamation claim. Instead, he 14 argues that LVMPD had notice of his wrongful arrest because it arrested a new defendant; his 15 attorneys’ fees motion noted that LVMPD knew it was “clearly prosecuting the wrong suspect;” 16 and he sought to seal his criminal records, thus “providing sufficient notice of claims alleged 17 herein.”<sup>97</sup> But none of these arguments shows that LVMPD was on notice of Carvajal’s

---

19 <sup>93</sup> Leven v. Frey, 168 P.3d 712, 717–18 (Nev. 2007); Vill. League to Save Incline Assets, Inc. v.
20 State ex rel. Bd. of Equalization, 194 P.3d 1254, 1259–60 (Nev. 2008).

21 <sup>94</sup> James v. City of Henderson, No. 2:19-cv-1207, 2020 WL 5775752, at *5 (D. Nev. Sept. 28, 2020).

22 <sup>95</sup> Semper v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, No. 2:20-cv-1875, 2021 WL 1342525, at *5 (D.
Nev. Apr. 9, 2021).

23 <sup>96</sup> Hatrim, 2011 WL 2690148, at *2–3.

<sup>97</sup> ECF No. 17 at 5–6.

1 defamation claim—they merely indicate that Carvajal believed he had been wrongfully arrested.
2 As the purpose of § 41.036(2) is to “prevent the state” from “being surprised by claims it has not
3 yet had time to consider administratively,”<sup>98</sup> I cannot find that Carvajal satisfied its requirements
4 solely by complaining of his wrongful arrest. So I follow the reasoning of other judges in this 5 district and dismiss Carvajal’s defamation claim with prejudice as time-barred.

6 In sum, I find that amendment would be futile for Carvajal’s claims for unlawful search 7 and seizure, false arrest and imprisonment, malicious prosecution, deprivation of liberty, and 8 defamation. But Carvajal might yet state an unconstitutional deprivation-of-property and 9 resulting Monell claim, so I decline to hold that amendment would be entirely futile.

10 B. Undue delay and dilatory motive

11 Absent complete futility or prejudice, the defendants must make a “strong showing” of 12 undue delay and dilatory motive to rebut the “presumption under Rule 15(a) in favor of granting 13 leave to amend.”<sup>99</sup> “Relevant to evaluating the delay issue is whether the moving party knew or 14 should have known the facts and theories raised by the amendment in the original pleading.”<sup>100</sup>
15 And bad faith or dilatory motive may be established by actions demonstrating gamesmanship, 16 such as when a plaintiff “seek[s] to add a defendant ‘to destroy diversity and to destroy the 17 jurisdiction of this court.’”<sup>101</sup> But when a plaintiff can provide “a satisfactory explanation” for 18
19
20

---

21 <sup>98</sup> State ex rel. Welfare Div. of Dep’t of Health, Welfare, and Rehab. v. Cap. Convalescent Ctr., 22 547 P.2d 677, 680 (Nev. 1976).

23 <sup>99</sup> Eminence Cap. LLC, 316 F.3d at 1052.

<sup>100</sup> Jackson v. Bank of Haw., 902 F.2d 1385, 1388 (9th Cir. 1990).

<sup>101</sup> DCD Programs, Ltd., 833 F.2d at 187.

1 its delay, and there is “no evidence in the record [that] would indicate a wrongful motive, there is
2 no cause to uphold the denial of leave to amend” on the basis of bad faith or undue delay.<sup>102</sup>

3 The defendants have failed to make this “strong showing,” and I see no reason to deny
4 Carvajal’s motion to amend because of undue delay or dilatory motive. “[D]elay alone no matter
5 how lengthy is an insufficient ground for denial of leave to amend;”<sup>103</sup> Carvajal’s motion is well
6 within the parties’ stipulated scheduling deadline to seek amendment; discovery is stayed; and 7 Carvajal discovered relevant, material facts and law between filing his first amended complaint
8 and seeking leave to amend. And while Carvajal does include many inflammatory facts—
9 impugning the integrity of the County and LVMPD, as well as its officers and employees—those 10 facts do not evince bad faith. Finally, as I discussed supra, Carvajal may still manage to allege 11 facts to support two of his causes of action. So I grant in part Carvajal’s motion for leave to 12 amend.

13 Conclusion

14 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Charaska and Deeds’s motion for summary
15 judgment [ECF No. 27] is GRANTED. Charaska and Deeds are entitled to summary judgment 16 on Carvajal’s § 1983 claims stemming from a judicial-deception theory of liability, which 17 includes his claims for unlawful entry and search, false arrest and imprisonment, malicious 18 prosecution, and deprivation of liberty. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that those claims, to the 19 extent they are pled against other defendants, are dismissed with prejudice.

---

23 <sup>102</sup> Id.

<sup>103</sup> United States v. Webb, 655 F.2d 977, 980 (9th Cir. 1981).

1 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that LVMPD's, Clark County's, the District Attorney's
2 Office's, Wolfson's, Charaska's, and Deeds's motions to dismiss [ECF Nos. 11, 15, 26] are

3 GRANTED:

- 4 • Carvajal's claims for defamation and negligent hiring, retention, supervision, and training 5 are dismissed with prejudice.
- 6 • Carvajal's claims against defendants City of Las Vegas, the district attorney's office,
7 Martinez, and Wolfson are dismissed.
- 8 • Carvajal's deprivation-of-property and Monell-based claims are dismissed without 9 prejudice and with leave to amend.

10 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Carvajal's motion for leave to amend the complaint
11 [ECF No. 40] is GRANTED IN PART. Carvajal may file an amended complaint alleging a 12 deprivation-of-property and Monell-based claim, consistent with this order, by June 2, 13 2021. I also direct him to clearly identify the defendants against whom he asserts each cause of 14 action. If he fails to file an amended pleading, Carvajal's claims will be deemed abandoned and 15 dismissed and this case will be closed without further prior notice.

16
17
U.S. District Judge Jennifer A. Dorsey
Dated: May 12, 2021
18
19
20
21
22
23